

CONTENTS

Preface vii

Acknowledgments xvii

A Note on Translations xix

1. Neoclassical Poetics and the Rise of the Novel 1
 - 1.1. Beating the Bounds of the Rules in Incognita 2
 - 1.2. "Manners, Passions, Unities" 8
 - 1.3. Neoclassicism and the Sciences 14
2. The Situational Logic of Vraisemblance 20
 - 2.1. Cognitive Moves 20
 - 2.2. "Successful Solutions" 25
 - 2.3. Vraisemblance Now 31

PART I: Poetic Justice

3. Samuel Richardson and the Project of Poetic Justice 43
 - 3.1. Virtue Rewarded 44
 - 3.2. Altruistic Punishers in B—Hall 51
 - 3.3. Pamela—Shamela—Anti-Pamela 54
4. The Trials of Clarissa 60
 - 4.1. Editing the Social Contract 61
 - 4.2. Lovelace's Happy Endings 67
 - 4.3. Poetic Justice at the Limits 73
5. Ann Radcliffe and the Abdication of the Superpunisher 79
 - 5.1. Comeuppance Clockworks 80
 - 5.2. Enter the Uncanny 84
 - 5.3. The Supernatural and Superpunishers 89

PART II: The Unities

6. Johnson's Rasselas and the Best Possible Storyworld 103
 - 6.1. Rasselas, the Imagination, and the Unities 104

6.2. Event Cognition, Spatialization, and the Conceptual Shape of the Storyworld	111
6.3. Closure in Abissinia	116
7. Utopian Reasoning in Mercier's L'An 2440 and Madden's Memoirs of the Twentieth Century	121
7.1. Poetics and Politics	122
7.2. The Cognitive Estrangements of Utopia	125
7.3. The Idea of Progress and Intertemporal Bargaining in Utopian Fiction	130
7.4. A Unified Utopia	136
8. The Dramatic Passages of The Castle of Otranto	139
8.1. Where the Bodies Are	140
8.2. The Return of Racine	147
8.3. Embodied Experience in the Novel	151
PART III: Decorum
9. Henry Fielding's Probability Design	165
9.1. "Sagacious Readers"	166
9.2. Decorum and Surprise	170
9.3. A Hero "Certainly Born to Be Hanged"	175
10. The Female Quixote and the Probability of Romance	182
10.1. The Querelle de Miss Groves	183
10.2. Educating Readers	188
10.3. Arabella's Wager	195
11. John Cleland versus the Novel	201
11.1. Building a Social World in Mrs. Mercier's Academy	202
11.2. The Predictable Novel	206
11.3. Love, Duty, and the End of Curiosity	211
Conclusion: Explorations in the Prehistory of Cognitive Poetics	218
Bibliography	225
Index	251